

MEREDITH W. MILLER

Meredith W. Miller served as the high performance director at USA Taekwondo from 2007-13 after joining the organization as the event manager in 2005.

During her tenure at USA Taekwondo, Miller directed the development of a new online event registration system and tournament management system. She was also named a top-three finalist for the U.S. Olympic Committee's 2012 Doc Counsilman Sport Science Coach of the Year award for her work with a technology-based scouting tool for taekwondo. The technology marked the first time statistics were used to evaluate international competitors in the sport.

She attended the University of Louisville where she played goalkeeper for the women's soccer team and graduated Cum Laude with a degree in sport administration.

She currently lives in Colorado Springs, Colo., where she serves as a consultant on various projects.